WELCOME TO VTIFF 2018!

Welcome to the 32nd year of the Vermont International How many programmers does it take to curate a festival program? In our case... 8. These dedicated film lovers spent the past six months collectively watching hundreds and hundreds of hours of film, writing their comments and arguing about them. That is what distinguishes VTIFF from many other festivals: we are not a call-for-entry festival. We curate.

Now that it's all come to fruition, I cannot begin to describe how excited I am. It's what I imagine it feels like to see a piece of machinery comprised of a huge number of parts that all fit together to make an engine work. The whole is so much more than the sum of its parts.

We hope that we've succeeded in including a representative selection of the best of international and American cinema. Our only regret each year is that films get left behind because we couldn't fit them in.

One special section of the festival this year involves films that relate to environmental justice. We are lucky to have as advisor Bill Stetson, who is on the board of the Environmental Film Festival in Washington, D.C. Together we have assembled a group of films on water, animals, nuclear energy, GMOs and more. And the filmmakers will all be here. I look forward to some great discussions.

We are also very happy to have expanded the Vermont Filmmakers' Showcase to our neighbors in New Hampshire, Maine, northern New York and Québec. Our hope is that the new NEQ Regional Film Showcase will provide an opportunity for filmmakers to meet and learn about each other's work. I encourage you to come to these free screenings (with a suggested donation) and support local filmmakers in the Northeast and Québec.

This year we have a record number of filmmakers attending the festival. They are listed [on page 28] of this guide. You will see them at post-screening Q&As and at the daily receptions. Don't be shy — talk to them and make them feel welcome. We want them to go home and tell people about VTIFF and Vermont.

I say this every year, but that doesn't make it less true: A film festival is an opportunity to immerse yourself in the cinematic arts and watch films as they are meant to be seen — on a big screen, in a dark room full of friends and strangers. But it is also an opportunity to discuss the films you have seen at post-screening Q&As and daily receptions, where you can eat, drink and seek recommendations from others.

VTIFF's mission is to enrich the community and bring the world to Vermont through film. My hope is that you have a wonderful time, while absorbing a wide range of film styles, genres and subjects.

Make sure, as well, to browse our sponsors' page. Grantors, sponsors, individual donors and VTIFF members together make it all possible. If you recognize any of them, please thank them, too.

I'll be at the festival most of the time. Feel free to come up to me, or to any of our board members, staff and dedicated volunteers, and let us know what you think.

Looking forward to seeing you at the movies!
Orly Yadin, VTIFF Executive Director

1945

Directed by Ferenc Török
Hungary | 2017 | Fiction | 91 min
Hungarian & Russian w/ English subtitles

Film Source: Menemsha
Sponsor: Barbara McGrew

SHOWTIMES
THURS, OCT 25 | 2:00PM | BB
SAT, OCT 27 | 7:00PM | BB

In the immediate aftermath of World War II, a village in Hungary grapples with its collective conscience when two Orthodox Jewish men arrive on the morning train. Set on the wedding day of the town clerk's son, Ferenc Török's gripping drama deals with a seldom-told aspect of European history: how the properties of deported Hungarian Jews were seized by gentiles during the Holocaust through shady deed transfers. Shot in crisp widescreen black and white, 1945 recalls John Sturges' innovative 1955 "modern Western" Bad Day at Black Rock in its use of suspenseful genre traditions to tell a postwar story of the shared guilt and complicity of an entire community. ~ LB

Eight years after receiving a two-decade filmmaking ban by the Iranian government, Jafar Panahi, a TIFF favorite (This Is Not a Film; Taxi), returns with a new film that premiered at the Cannes Film Festival this year. Once again, we find him acting in another story seemingly pulled from his real experiences. The film opens with a video shot on a cell phone showing a desperate plea for help from a teenage girl, whose family forbids her to pursue her dream of entering the entertainment world. That video ends with the girl's apparent suicide on camera. We learn that the video was sent to Panahi, begging him to forward it to celebrity actress Behnaz Jafari. And so the main film begins with Panahi and Jafari on a road trip to determine the fate of the girl. Is the suicide a fake? Is it real? They become involved with the girl's small rural community, contemplating the alienation and yearning at the root of provincial life and the status of women in a male-dominated society. This alone would have been fascinating enough. Throw into the mix Panahi's meta-narrative — did he construct the whole opening in order to entice the movie star to join him on a journey of discovery? Is he really directing this film despite the ban (as his mother suspects in a sudden phone call to him)? "No," he replies, "I'm just driving along with some friends." ~ OY

The Pacific Islands nation of Kiribati (population 100,000) is one of the most remote places on the planet, seemingly far-removed from the pressures of modern life. Yet it is one of the first countries that must confront the main existential dilemma of our time: imminent annihilation from rising sea levels. While Kiribati President Anote Tong races to find a way to protect his nation's people and maintain their dignity, many citizens are already seeking safe harbor overseas. Set against the backdrop of international climate and human rights negotiations, Anote's struggle to save his nation is intertwined with the extraordinary fate of Sermay, a young mother of six, who fights to migrate her family to New Zealand. At stake is the survival of Sermay's family, the Kiribati people, and 4,000 years of Kiribati culture.

THE ATOMIC CAFE

Directed by Jayne Loader, Kevin Rafferty, Pierce Rafferty
USA | 1982 | Documentary | 88 min

Film Source: Kino Lorber
Sponsor: John Douglas
4K DIGITAL RESTORATION
Followed by Q&A with Director Pierce Rafferty

SHOWTIME
SAT, OCT 27 | 4:00PM | FH

Hilarious and horrifying, often at the same time, this blackly comic documentary about the dawn of the Atomic Age is as timely as ever. Originally released in 1982, during a period when the Reagan administration was aggressively ramping up the U.S. nuclear arsenal, The Atomic Cafe is a collage of government propaganda films, newsreels, advertisements and civil defense "social guidance" films from the 1940s and '50s. From a campy ad extolling the benefits of fallout shelters to an Army propaganda film meant to convince soldiers to approach a nuclear blast site with just a helmet and rifle for protection, The Atomic Cafe suggests that the satirical humor of Stanley Kubrick's Dr. Strangelove (1964) wasn't that far removed from reality. With nuclear overtures from North Korea and covert Russian operations to thwart American democracy prominent in 2018 headlines, the lessons of the 1950s have never felt more relevant. ~ LB

BEAUTY AND THE DOGS (AALA KAF IFRIT)

Directed by Kaouther Ben Hania
Tunisia | 2017 | Fiction | 100 min

Awards / premier festivals: Cannes - Un Certain Regard
Sponsor: Peace & Justice Center

SHOWTIMES
SAT, OCT 20 | 4:15PM | BB
TUES, OCT 23 | 2:00PM | BB

Kaouther Ben Hania (The Challat of Tunis, VTIFF 2015) returns with this powerful and intelligently structured film, loosely based on a real event. A fun-filled evening descends into a Kafkaesque nightmare for a 21-year-old woman (the absolutely amazing Mariam Al Ferjani). The drama — her rape by two policemen and her subsequent attempts to see justice done — brilliantly unfolds in such a way that we, too, begin to doubt the woman's testimony. Beauty and the Dogs provides a feminist spin on the continued battle for basic legal rights following the 2011 ousting of Tunisia's Ben Ali regime. It's a powerful look at the frustrations and futility of what happens in a patriarchal society when the perpetrators are also the law enforcers ~ OY

THE BIGGEST LITTLE FARM

Directed by John Chester
USA | 2018 | Documentary | 91 min

Film Source: Neon
Premier festivals: Telluride, TIFF

SHOWTIME
SAT, OCT 27 | 12:00PM | BB

The successes and failures of a couple determined to live in harmony with nature on a farm outside of Los Angeles are lovingly chronicled by filmmaking farmer John Chester. Teeming with beautiful images of flora and fauna — and a pregnant hog that will melt your heart — The Biggest Little Farm is a testament to idealism. It's also a family adventure, full of suspense and emotion that will leave a lump in your throat. When the barking of their beloved dog leads to an eviction notice from their tiny LA apartment, John and Molly Chester make a choice that takes them out of the city and onto 200 acres in the foothills of Ventura County, naively endeavoring to build one of the most diverse farms of its kind in complete coexistence with nature. The land they've chosen, however, is utterly depleted of nutrients and suffering from a brutal drought. The film chronicles eight years of daunting work and outsize idealism. When the farm's ecosystem finally begins to reawaken, so does the Chesters' hope — but as their plan to create perfect harmony takes a series of wild turns, they realize that to survive they will have to reach a far greater understanding nature, and of life itself.

BIRD OF PREY

Directed by Eric Liner
USA/Philippines | 2018 | Documentary | 95 min

Film Source: Filmmaker
Sponsors: Sandy and Muffie Milens
Followed by Skype Q&A with Director Liner - Sunday

SHOWTIMES
FRI, OCT 26 | 2:00PM | FH
SUN, OCT 28 | 12:15PM | FH

The Philippine Eagle is a bird of extremes. It's the world's largest and rarest eagle, found only in the Philippines. Fewer than 700 remain today, and the future of these iconic birds — and of an untold number of other species — is tied to the fate of the Philippines' last fragments of old-growth forest. In 1977, world-renowned cinematographer Neil Rettig captured the first filmed images of the Philippine Eagle in the wild, transforming the bird into a national symbol. But with a rapidly expanding population facing serious political, economic and environmental battles, the eagle's plight has fallen out of public consciousness. Bird of Prey follows Rettig's return to the Philippines as he embarks on a grueling expedition alongside the next generation of Filipinos determined to save the eagle from extinction. In order to secure the survival of the species, the team follows a family of nesting eagles from hatch to fledge in hopes of re-establishing the species as a living symbol of the Philippines' future.

BISBEE '17

Directed by Robert Greene
USA | 2018 | Hybrid Doc | 112 min

Film Source: 4th Row Films
Awards / premier festivals: Sundance
Sponsor: Lisa Schamberg

SHOWTIME
SAT, OCT 20 | 4:00PM | FH

The title of Bisbee '17 is twofold. In 1917, in the copper-mining town of Bisbee, Arizona, more than 1,000 striking miners — mostly migrant workers from Mexico and Eastern Europe — were illegally and violently deported to the New Mexico desert by a posse led by Cochise County Sheriff Harry C. Wheeler. In 2017, director Robert Greene staged a recreation of the Bisbee Deportation, with local residents playing the parts of the deportees and deportees. Seamlessly blending interviews with stylized reenactments, Bisbee '17 brings history into the present tense and serves as a potent commentary on the present-day immigration policies of the Trump administration. ~ LB

BORDER (GRÄNS)

Directed by Ali Abbasi
Sweden | 2018 | Fiction | 109 min
Swedish w/English subtitles

Film Source: Neon
Awards / premier festivals: Sweden's submission to the Academy Awards; Cannes - Un Certain Regard

SHOWTIME
SAT, OCT 20 | 9:15PM | FH

Border follows a border guard (the astounding Eva Melander) who has the unerring ability to smell human emotions and catch smugglers. Mysteriously humorous opening scenes come to a halt when one man's smell eludes her and she is forced to confront disturbing insights about herself and humankind. Border gloriously defies the convention of placing stereotypically attractive actors in lead roles. This is a film that conveys multitudes about humanity, immigration, beauty, sexuality, parenthood, community and much more. Some countries have fairy tales; Swedes have their trolls in the woods, and Border brings them alive with a contemporary twist. This film will stay with you long after the last frame. Not recommended for family viewing. ~ OY

THE CITY WITHOUT JEWS (DIE STADT OHNE JUDEN)

Directed by H. K. Breslauer
Austria | 1924 | Fiction | 74 min
Silent w/English intertitles

Film Source: Austrian Film Archive
Sponsor: UVM Hillel
Followed by Q&A with Raye Farr, former Director of the Film Archive and Special Exhibits at the US Holocaust Memorial Museum

SHOWTIME
SUN, OCT 21 | 4:00PM | FH

This 1924 Austrian film was believed to be lost until a print was found in a Paris flea market in 2015 and was subsequently restored by the Austrian Film Archive. One of the few surviving Expressionist films from Austria, The City Without Jews is based on a dystopian novel by a Jewish writer, Hugo Bettauer, who created an allegorical vision of the near future, satirizing the prevalent anti-Semitism of the time. Austria's chancellor sees his people as being ruled by Jews and therefore passes a law forcing all Jews to emigrate. Vienna in the film is called Utopia, and initially the city's Aryan population celebrates the departure of their Jewish neighbors. Very quickly, though, Utopia's cultural life falls into neglect and the ailing economy does not revive. A love affair, a psychiatric institution presented in the most wonderful Expressionist style, and a deus ex machina denouement move the story along. The film opened in Vienna on July 25, 1924, in Berlin in 1926, and in New York in 1928. In 1933, a version of the film was shown for the last time in Amsterdam, as a protest against Hitler's Germany. ~ OY

SHOWTIMES
SUN, OCT 21 | 4:30PM | BB
SAT, OCT 22 | 2:15PM | BB

"If you commit one mistake, it could trigger war." One might assume that quote is attributable to a government official or a high-ranking corporate executive, but it's actually spoken by a social-media "content moderator" — a job outsourced by Silicon Valley tech giants Facebook, Google and Twitter to hourly workers in the Philippines. On one level, The Cleaners profiles the quietly heroic gatekeepers of the Internet — the unrecognized content scrubbers who view up to 25,000 questionable and often horrific images per day and determine if they violate social-media guidelines. But in the wake of Facebook's struggle to contain hate speech in Myanmar and the company's role in the Cambridge Analytica data-mining scandal, German filmmakers Hans Block and Moritz Riesewieck's documentary is also about the dangers of allowing anonymous people to regulate free speech, and the potential for social-media outlets to compromise democracy. ~ LB

CRIME + PUNISHMENT

Directed by Steven Maing
USA | 2018 | Documentary | 112 min

Film Source: The Film Collaborative
Awards / premier festivals: Sundance – Special Jury Prize for Social Impact
Sponsor: ACLU of Vermont
Followed by Q&A with James Duff Lyall, Executive Director of ACLU VT

SHOWTIME
THURS, OCT 25 | 3:45PM | FH

Winner of the Special Jury Prize for Social Impact at the Sundance Film Festival, Stephen Maing's tough, riveting documentary chronicles the struggles of a group of whistleblower cops in New York City as they fight back against the now illegal arrest quotas they are still pressured to enact. Although the film realistically assesses the intractable problems of achieving a color-blind justice, we also get an insider's view of the complexity of corruption in the criminal-justice system and experience the inspiring courage of those inside the system who fight back with some success. Shot between 2014 and 2017, the film's events proceed against the backdrop of higher-profile national events such as the killing of Eric Garner and the release of the Justice Department's Ferguson Report, which detailed the way police in that Missouri city became armed tax collectors preying mostly on nonwhite citizens. ~ AM

CUSTODY (JUSQU'À LA GARDE)

Directed by Xavier Legrand
France | 2018 | Fiction | 93 min
French w/English subtitles

Sponsor: Alliance française of the Lake Champlain Region

SHOWTIMES
SUN, OCT 21 | 2:00PM | BB
TUES, OCT 23 | 4:30PM | FH

This is a directorial debut of longtime actor Xavier Legrand (who appeared in Louis Malle's Au Revoir les Enfants as a child), but you'd never know it; Custody takes an everyday case of domestic violence and elevates it to a riveting drama. The film begins with an air of documentary reality before evolving into a claustrophobic thriller, slowly building tension until all doubt is put to rest in its grand finale. Have no worries — no direct violence is shown on screen. "As Alfred Hitchcock said," Legrand quotes an interview, "there is no terror in the bank, only in the anticipation of it." Variety cited Legrand as one of the 10 directors to watch in 2018. Come to the film and you'll see why. ~ OY

DEAD WOMEN WALKING

Sponsor: Lorna-Kay Peal
Co-sponsor: Peace & Justice Center

SHOWTIME
SUN, OCT 28 | 4:15PM | FH

This is not a documentary and perhaps, therefore, is all the more powerful in its depiction of individual women on death row facing their final moments. The film never judges, nor does it disclose whether they are innocent or guilty. Its focus is entirely on the actual experience. As the film progresses, the next woman portrayed is closer to execution than the previous one, thus creating rhythm and tension that draws us into this experience. A thought-provoking and riveting film. ~ OY

THE DESERT BRIDE (LA NOVIA DEL DESIERTO)

Directed by Cecuikua Atán & Valeria Pivato
Chile | 2017 | Fiction | 78 min
Spanish w/English subtitles

Film Source: Strand Releasing

SHOWTIME
Sun, Oct 28 | 12:00PM | BB

A tender and subtly funny road movie about a middle-aged woman and middle-aged man. The main actress, Paulina Garcia (who won a Silver Bear in 2013 for Sebastián Lelio's film Gloria), is outstanding. The Desert Bride could be labeled a sophisticated shaggy dog story — a portrait of a developing relationship. Its gentle pace amounts to something real and resonant, and it cultivates a mood of dawdling realism. It works like recent Richard Linklater movies: a "slow cinema" that doesn't drag the impatient spectator along, but floats deliberately across its terrain with confidence and plenty of heart. If you let yourself go with the flow, you won't be disappointed. ~ OY

DREAMING OF A JEWISH CHRISTMAS

Directed by Larry Weinstein
Canada | 2017 | Documentary | 52 min

Film Source: 7th Art
Sponsor: Lyric Theatre Company

CLOSING NIGHT FILM
SUN, OCT 28 | 7:00PM | FH

"A musical documentary about the amazing story of a group of Jewish songwriters who wrote the soundtrack to Christmas" — this is the film's official synopsis and, really, it says it all. Or does it? No good film works on one level alone. The experience of immigrants whose desire to integrate into the culture of their new home is universal. The irony here is that the songs these Jewish lyricists wrote really did become the most canonic American Christmas songs. Needless to say, much of this film is set in a Chinese restaurant... with some entertaining numbers and dances, including the Chinese restaurant staff. Now that's a melting pot for you. Enjoy, and sing along. ~ OY

Fake Tattoos is a beautifully made coming-of-age film imbued with rare warmth that skillfully avoids the clichés of most young romance films. Pascal Plante's debut feature spins an understated and slyly shifting tale of summertime love. What begins as a two-hander about a pair of young thrash-metal fans — who talk and flirt their way into bed and coupledom — eventually transforms into a more singular investigation of adolescent guilt and renewal. The script is warm and tender and the narrative is full of surprises. ~ OY

THE GUILTY

Directed by Gustav Möller
Denmark | Fiction | 2018 | 85 min

Film Source: Magnolia
Awards / premier festivals: Sundance - Audience Award; Rotterdam – Audience Award

SHOWTIMES
SAT, OCT 20 | 7:15PM | BB
TUES, OCT 23 | 2:30PM | FH

A masterly exercise in close-up suspense, set entirely in a police call center, The Guilty concerns a disgraced police dispatcher who sees a chance for redemption when he suspects that a distraught caller has been kidnapped. First-time director Gustav Möller uses sophisticated sound editing and relentless shallow-focus camerawork to force viewers to use their imagination to visualize the action taking place outside the police station. Anchored by a commanding performance from Jakob Cedergren, The Guilty is a rare combination of art-house aesthetic and edge-of-your-seat entertainment that demands to be seen on the big screen. ~ LB

The complexities of U.S.-Mexico border relations are distilled into the daily routines of high school students in director Matthew Ogens' richly humanistic documentary. Home + Away profiles three Mexican-American student athletes at Bowie High School in El Paso, Texas, who cross the border from Ciudad Juárez each day to attend classes. Erik, a star soccer player, is struggling to keep his grades up; Shyanne, a talented wrestler, is considering joining the Army after graduation to support her family; and Francisco, a pitcher with an electric fastball, regrets that his father isn't allowed to cross the border to watch his games. With straightforward observation, Home + Away examines the balancing act of coexisting between cities that are separated by a physical border, but are linked socially and economically. ~ LB

1. CITY ON THE WATER

With 520 miles of waterfront, New York City is truly a water city. Everywhere you go, there are tunnels and bridges delivering you over water, to such a degree that some have dubbed the waterways that encircle it "the sixth borough".

2. RESTORING THE CLEARWATER

For nearly a year, the historic sloop Clearwater was out of water, on land, enduring what wooden boats have endured forever: Restoration. Bowermaster's Oceans 8 film crew documented the restoration and return of the ship to the Hudson.

3. SEEDS OF HOPE

A unique effort to save several varieties of Native American seeds: a combined effort of the Hudson Valley Farm Hub, Hudson Valley Seed Library, and the Akwesane Tribe of northern NY, to preserve both a rich agricultural heritage and its stories.

This marvelous magic-realist feminist film is both an allegory and a satire. Shot in Zambia but set in a non-descript African country, I Am Not a Witch focuses on Shula, an 8-year-old girl who is accused of witchcraft, after which she is taken into state custody and exiled to a witch camp. Full of intentionally absurd scenes, this lush, light, poetic film provides an unflinching look at the clash between modern and traditional ways of living. It ends with a prime example of visual storytelling at its best. ~ OY

Ashley Bell and a team of elephant rescuers led by Asian elephant conservationist Lek Chailert embark on a daring 48-hour mission across Thailand to rescue a 70-year-old captive Asian elephant and lead it to freedom. African elephants are slaughtered for their ivory, but the plight of the Asian elephant has been overlooked, even though they are the elephant we are most familiar with in zoos, circuses and elephant rides. Love and Bananas exposes the cruel secret that every Asian elephant has had to endure to become a service animal: a process called "Pajan", aka the "crush box." Love and Bananas aims to ignite a new way of thinking about this species and shows what can be done to prevent their extinction. "You don't need a bull hook to control an elephant. You can guide an elephant with love ... and bananas." ~ Lek Chailert, Thai conservationist and founder of Save Elephant Foundation.

SAT, OCT 20 | 12:15PM | BB

"You are not the cat — you are inside the cat." So begins Josephine Decker's Madeline's Madeline, an ecstatically disorienting experience that defines its terms right from the start and then obliterates any trace of traditional film language, achieving a cinematic aphasia that allows Decker to redraw the boundaries between the stories we tell and the people we tell them about. The result is an experimental movie with the emotional tug of a mainstream hit, a fragmented coming-of-age drama that explores the vast space between Hollis Frampton and Greta Gerwig in order to find something truly new and ineffably of its time.

"This is one of the boldest and most invigorating American films of the 21st century." ~ David Erlich, Indiewire

Who knew the process of making charcoal could be so fascinating? Makala documents the daily life of a Congolese charcoal maker who cuts down 20-foot trees by hand, bakes the wood in a makeshift mud oven, and then treks more than 30 miles to deliver the product to market. As a portrait of a father who will go to any length to provide for his family, Emmanuel Gras' visually and aurally sophisticated doc recalls Vittorio De Sica's neorealist masterpiece Bicycle Thieves, while the protagonist's trip pushing a rickety bike on the side of a windswept dirt highway has the visceral sweep of an adventure epic. An intimate look at an everyman worker, Makala is a stirring cinematic experience. ~ LB

Embarking on a journey of redemption and empowerment, a young widow seeks down-to-earth revenge on the men who have raped her. This nuanced feminist film, with a creative soundtrack and economic transitions between scenes, will surprise you at every twist of the way. ~ OY

Ms. 45 is American independent film icon Abel Ferrara's 1981 revenge thriller classic. When a nationwide uprising breaks out in 1987, a woman in Gaza must choose between love, family and freedom. A Belgrade apartment divided in two with a locked door that has remained unopened for 60 years is the “MacGuffin” device that propels and underpins this multi-layered documentary. This is a film where the historical, political and personal mesh seamlessly. It tells the story of a family and at the same time serves as a symbol of a country in political turmoil. The property in question was split on the orders of the then-communist government when the filmmaker’s mother, Srbijanka Turajilic, who was born there, was just 2 years old. Her daughter, Mila Turajilic, the film’s director, lets her mother, a prominent political activist who played a leading role in the revolution, take center place in the film, as she did in her activist life. The Other Side of Everything is a complex and tender generational film that feels very current today. ~ OY

This documentary about María Irene Fornés, the groundbreaking playwright, director and teacher, is both a biography and a personal film of a young filmmaker learning from Fornés how to be an artist. First-time director Michelle Memran befriends and follows Fornés, looking for a mentor. Filmed over multiple years, we see the relationship transform from mentor/mentee to true friendship. Through this friendship we become privy to her artistic life in New York City, her family in Cuba and her loves — including Susan Sontag, whom she calls “the love of my life.” When Fornés begins to show signs of Alzheimer’s, the relationship shifts again, but not as expected. It is a sensitive representation of dementia — seen not as the loss of intellect, but as the loss of memory and inhibition, while the creative spark and lust for life remain. The film is a celebration of Fornés, friendship and the undying artistic spirit. ~ JS

This documentary examines the effect nutria — an invasive species of swamp rats — are having on southern Louisiana. As the rodents eat the brush that protects the coastline from hurricanes and erosion, they are hastening flooding and loss of land from rising sea waters. The film transports the audience back in time through animated sequences, then jumps forward, exploring the people fighting this invasive species. The filmmakers succeed in pointing to larger issues of climate change, generational changes, traditions and class, without forgoing a light and humorous tone. The film is not just about the South, but rather about how to deal with invasive species all over the world. ~ JS

SAMMY DAVIS, JR.: I'VE GOTTA BE ME

Directed by Sam Pollard
USA | 2017 | Documentary | 100 min

Film Source: Menemsha
Sponsor: Anonymous

SHOWTIME
SAT, OCT 20 | 1:45PM | FH

Sammy Davis Jr. is probably best known today as a member of the Rat Pack — the hard-drinking, wisecracking, womanizing entertainers, led by Frank Sinatra, who ruled Vegas in the '60s. Yet I've Gotta Be Me reveals a far more complex figure than his onstage persona: a dogged individualist who helped bridge racial divides while facing discrimination from all sides. Samuel Pollard’s briskly entertaining documentary surveys Davis’ entire career, from his childhood days on the vaudeville circuit to his Broadway triumphs as a pioneering black star and his highly publicized conversion to Judaism following a near-fatal 1954 car accident. As the film examines, Davis endured racist threats for his relationships with white actresses Kim Novak and May Britt, yet he was also scorned by blacks for his perceived white lifestyle and his friendship with President Nixon during the Vietnam era. But throughout the controversies, he remained an indefatigable performer and brilliant impressionist who could sing, dance and act with equal aplomb. Sammy Davis Jr. could do it all — and he always did it his way. ~ LB

Acclaimed filmmaker Margarethe von Trotta celebrates what would have been Ingmar Bergman’s 100th birthday this year with a documentary that provides insight into the Swedish master’s work and delves into his complex relationships with family and collaborators. The film avoids a traditional decade-by-decade style and instead is structured around the relationships in Bergman’s life. At its heart, the film explores the impetus for making art and the effect the artist’s self-centeredness had on people in his life. Von Trotta brings Bergman’s leading actresses, family and fellow directors along for the journey. ~ JS

THE SLUMBER PARTY MASSACRE

Directed by Amy Holden Jones
USA | 1982 | Fiction | 82 min

SHOWTIME
9 PM | FH
The second film at Main Street Landing presenting a special "Lady Killers" double bill

Originally the writer, well-known feminist novelist Rita Mae Brown wanted the film to critique the rampant sexualization of women in early '80s slasher films. Although Roger Corman shelved Brown's screenplay, New World editor-turned director Holden Jones rescued and reconceived it. The plot is classic. A girl's parents go out of town, so she throws a slumber party with friends. But, as so often happens in movies, there's a crazed killer on the loose (weapon: giant drill; distinctive costume: Canadian tuxedo) and he crashes the party too. The result is a whip-smart scare-fest that works both as a well-done and exciting slasher movie, but also as a feminist statement piece. ~ MR

A superhero film like no other, Supa Modo follows a 9-year-old Kenyan girl named Jo (Stycie Waweru) who takes flight from the harsh realities of a terminal illness diagnosis by believing she has super powers like her heroes. Far from being a morbid film, director Likarion Wainaina succeeds in creating a funny and joyful experience without undermining the seriousness of Jo's condition. This is a film about both the role of fantasy and the power of a community to support their own by rallying around her and creating situations that lead Jo to believe that she does, indeed, possess superpowers. Waweru, in the role of Jo, is marvelous and helps challenge and redefine the representation of African women in film. Bring your kids and enjoy this film as a family. ~ OY

Support the Girls is a feminist comedy set in the unlikeliest of locales: a Hooters-like Texan bar whose marketing mantra is "boobs, brews and big screens." Regina Hall, in a marvelous performance, plays the general manager of Double Whammies, a "sports bar with curves." During the course of a trying workday fraught with comic mishaps, she struggles to balance job responsibilities with her motherly devotion to her waitresses. Writer-director Andrew Bujalski (Funny Ha Ha; Computer Chess) tackles the gender politics of macho sports-bar culture with unassuming perception and a keen comedic eye for the behind-the-scenes details of the restaurant industry. In the midst of the #MeToo movement, Support the Girls is a timely look at the ways working-class women create support systems to survive until the next shift. ~ LB

Through the eyes of Sierra Leonean filmmaker Arthur Pratt, Survivors presents a portrait of his country during the Ebola outbreak, exposing the complexity of the epidemic and the sociopolitical turmoil that lay in its wake. Survivors chronicles the remarkable stories of Sierra Leoneans during what is now widely regarded as the most acute public health crisis of the modern era. Pratt, who is also a pastor, serves as the guide of the film – narrating and in vision. Drawing from deeply personal stories of three Sierra Leoneans at the epicenter of the epidemic, the film boldly shares the individual bravery, bureaucratic missteps and deep humanity of the people caught in an unfolding crisis. Pratt's unique access, narrative voice and observational documentary coverage of the outbreak becomes a prism for understanding both the social and the political significance of the health catastrophe.

In this gorgeously animated drama, the lives of several strong-willed women and a young musician intersect. Their stories reveal how sex, drugs and corruption coexist side by side with strict religious law. In the bustling metropolis of Tehran, avoiding prohibitions has become an everyday sport and breaking taboos can be a means of personal emancipation. Nevertheless, women invariably end up on the bottom rung of the social order. A young woman needs an operation to "restore" her virginity. A judge in the Islamic Revolutionary Court exhorts favors from a prostitute in exchange for a favorable ruling. The wife of an imprisoned drug addict is denied the divorce she needs in order to live independently. A naturalistic live-action style would have rendered this film simplistic and possibly crude, but the wise choice of rotoscope animation elevates the meaning and power of the film to another, more universal level. ~ OY

THE THIRD MURDER

A courtroom drama of rare philosophical inquiry, The Third Murder stars Masaharu Fukuyama (Like Father, Like Son) as an elite attorney tasked with defending a murder suspect who was spared the death penalty for a killing 30 years prior. Recent Palme d'Or winner Hirokazu Kore-eda uses a Rashomon-like narrative structure — in which the defendant bizarrely keeps changing his story — to question the possibility of objective truth in a legal matter of life and death. ~ LB

"I am the daughter of immigrants. I am a Muslim I am a feminist. I am a lefty liberal. And what I want to ask you is: Am I your enemy?" asks director Deeyah Khan at the beginning of the film as she sits down to interview Jared Taylor, a well-known American white supremacist. Throughout this one-hour documentary, she meets face-to-face with Neo-Nazis and white nationalists, including Richard Spencer, and attends the now infamous Unite the Right rally in Charlottesville, Virginia, as she seeks to understand the personal and political motivations behind the resurgence of far-right extremism in the U.S. Some of these men grow fond of Kahn and gradually admit that their views about Muslims do not apply to her. The effect of their superficial transformation reinforces the underlying message that we tend to hate those we don't know and don't want to know. Khan has a tradition of exploring the reasons behind extreme actions and hatred: In 2015, she made Jihad: The Story of Others, examining why young Muslims become jihadists. ~ OY

WOMAN AT WAR (KONA FER I STRI)

Directed by Benedikt Erlingsson
Iceland/France/Ukraine | 2018 | Fiction | 100 min
Icelandic w/English subtitles

Film Source: Magnolia
Sponsor: Todd Lockwood

OPENING NIGHT FILM
FRI, OCT 19 | 7:00PM | FH

Halla (Halldóra Geirharðsdóttir), a choir director leading a seemingly quiet existence in an upscale Reykjavik neighborhood, is secretly the "Mountain Woman," an ecological crusader determined to sabotage the aluminum smelting industry in Iceland. But when a long-forgotten adoption application is accepted, Halla is torn between her greater environmental mission and her maternal instincts for a child from war-torn Ukraine. Writer-director Benedikt Erlingsson (whose feature debut Of Horses and Men was an audience favorite at VTIFF 2014) combines ironic humor and clever plot twists with bravura action sequences in which Halla, armed with just a bow and arrow, knocks out the local power grid. With unpretentious insight, the film also draws a crucial link between climate change and the global migrant crisis. Woman at War is a movie of the moment that seems destined to stand the test of time. ~ LB

ZAMA

Directed by Lucrecia Martel
Argentina | 2017 | Fiction | 115 min
Spanish w/English subtitles

Film Source: Strand Releasing
Awards / premier festivals: Venice, Toronto, New York
Sponsor: Arnie Malina

SHOWTIME
SAT, OCT 27 | 2:00PM | BB

Visually and dramatically powerful, with an epic grandeur evocative of filmmaker Werner Herzog and author Joseph Conrad's Heart of Darkness, acclaimed Argentine director Lucretia Martel creates a surreal, dreamlike portrait of 18th century Spanish colonialism in the New World with dense, precise detail and masterful sound, set and color design. The main character, Don Diego de Zama, is tragicomic and Kafkaesque, a beleaguered agent of Western colonialism who was born a Creole in the New World and now, because of bureaucracy and prejudice, cannot escape to the more "civilized" Spanish territory he covets. Though details between native slaves and invaders reflect the violence implicit in 18th century colonial racism, Zama is very much of our time. The film has impressive producing credits, including Pedro Almodóvar, Gael García Bernal and Danny Glover, showing the faith they have in one of cinema's finest directors. ~ AM

LOWELL THOMAS: THE VOICE OF AMERICA

Directed by Rick Moulton | VT | Documentary | 85 min
NEQ Opening Night

Lowell Thomas helped determine how America saw the world in a century in which America dominated the world. Creative, entrepreneurial, and technologically savvy, Thomas helped create 20th century American journalism: mostly male, nonpartisan, sober, portentous, and cosmopolitan—and mildly xenophobic. A swashbuckling adventurer, Thomas took American audiences with him on the radio and in newsreels, and helped established personality-driven journalism. The man who helped invent this way of reporting and telling the news was the Indiana Jones of journalism: crashing planes, falling from horses, staring down rifles—but always coming back with the story. Journalism worldwide continues to follow his model: aggressive, entrepreneurial, unabashed, technologically advanced. Thomas's stories, both beloved and belittled for their grandiosity, shaped 20th century America's knowledge of the world and influenced foreign policy. Voice of America tells the story of its genesis. With narration from Robert Siegel, longtime host of NPR's “All Things Considered.”

TOUCHED

Directed by Karl Hearne | QC | Fiction | 78 min

A ghostly genre-hopping mystery about a young woman who disappears from her building and her solitary landlord who becomes obsessed with tracking her down. The landlord's search for his disappeared tenant starts him on a strange adventure. Guided by a little girl—the vanished tenant as a child—odd things begin to happen, and the landlord struggles to figure out what's real. The child's kindness may be his only source of light and hope, but she is also leading him down a rabbit hole... and he may not be able to find his missing tenant or the surface again. Part ghost story, part psychological drama about an unlikely father figure and a nine-year-old girl, this film creates a portrait of human isolation, exploring both socio-pathology and the fragile power of human kindness.

ROOTED: CULTIVATING COMMUNITY IN THE VERMONT GRANGE

Directed by Ned Castle & Charlotte Barrett | VT
Documentary | 57 min

Vermont's agricultural heritage gets a starring role in this film, which goes inside the Grange, the national farmers' organization, to explore how it has worked to strengthen and preserve rural communities since 1867. Created in partnership with the Middle Branch Grange in East Bethel and Riverside Grange in West Topsham, Rooted uses an ethnographic approach to explore the social, economic, and political impacts of the National Grange on Vermont's rural communities over the past 150 years. In one-on-one interviews and at social gatherings, Grange members reminisce about growing up in the Grange "family" and share their hopes and concerns for the future of an organization challenged to adapt to a sharply different concept of community in the 21st century. A co-production of Historic New England and the Vermont Folklife Center.

Through interviews and interactions with neurologists, researchers, politicians, advocates, environmentalists, health officials, farmers, and patients and their families, they explore the challenges surrounding this nascent and very serious public health concern.

KALI YUGA CHANTS

Directed by Nilima Abrams | VT | Documentary | 91 min

Kali Yuga Chants follows "Uncle" and "Aunty," a mixed-race couple living in India, and the 35 children they're raising in a makeshift foster family. The film chronicles the kids' transformation from begging in the streets and picking through garbage to learning meditation and math, karate and cooking. Individual kids are followed over ten years as they gain confidence, overcome anger and sadness, and navigate teenage hormones. The kids become expert chanters of Hinduism's ancient Vedic mantras, which, ironically, help them to break free from the caste and gender stigma of their births but still brings backlash from the established elite. As the whole group struggles to build a permanent home, external and internal complications threaten to tear apart the family, raising questions that are central to the human condition.
